Boy (13-15) Concert Plea

This sucks. It's totally bogus! What do I have to do to prove that you can trust me? I'm getting decent grades. I'm always doing what ever you say. I mowed the lawn twice last week after that big storm. Twice! Just 'cause you thought the dumb grass would go brown. I do everything around here, and you still treat me like I'm six years old!

You never let me do anything. All I'm asking is that you let me stay out an extra two hours on a Friday night. You know how much I love Eminem. This is probably my only chance to go to his concert. What if I call you to check in right after the show is over?

I swear if you let me stay out, I'll never ask for anything ever again. It could be my Christmas present. You won't have to buy me anything. And you better believe I'll buy you something awesome!

Look. You know I'm going with Charlie and Adam. And Adam's mom is driving us there, and picking us up right after. All I want to do is go to the show, listen to some music and we'll get right in the car and come home. C'mon! If I were upstairs the whole time listening to music, you wouldn't care. So, what's the big deal?

How 'bout if I play some of his music for you. You can hear that he's not like all those other rappers. It won't be dangerous, or lots of druggies. Eminem is like suburban rap, really! Everyone will probably be wearing khakis and golf shirts, just like you. Please?

Ugggh! I never get to do anything fun! How come you let Ryan stay out with your car 'til midnight, even after he dented the bumper? Yeah, a big dent and the side is all scratched up. You didn't know? Hmmm I wonder if he was drinking. You think he was drinking? Or worse? Maybe he's into drugs or something.

So, Dad, can I go with Adam and Charlie on Friday?
