Boy (16-18) Enjoy Work

Why do so many people work their whole lives at jobs they hate? Doesn't that sound ridiculous? Well, it does to me. There's no way I'm gonna take a job, just to make money. I mean, I want to work at something that I like. Something that will make me want to get out of bed.

I don't know what that is yet, but I'll definitely figure it out one day. Maybe I could get paid to shoot hoops. Naw, I'll never get in the NBA, that's for sure. How about video games. I could play them to test how good they are, or better yet, I could come up with the ideas for them. That job would rock!

And if that doesn't work out, I think it would be pretty cool to win the lotto. Ya know, nothing too huge, just like ten mil. I could easily live on that, then I could just play the video games and shoot hoops and never worry about punching a clock. Hey, I gotta get back. My breaks over, and it's time to clean the grease traps on the burger griddle. No way I'll do this for the rest of my life!
